

Vietnam Composite Optical Cable

AI Overview

Composite optical cables in Vietnam, including OPGW and fiber optic solutions, are widely manufactured and supplied for power utilities, telecommunications, and data networks. Overview of Composite Optical Cables Composite optical cables, such as OPGW (Optical Ground Wire), serve a dual purpose: they function as a ground or static wire for power lines while simultaneously transmitting voice, video, or data signals through embedded optical fibers. The fibers are typically housed in a stainless steel tube filled with water-resistant jelly, which is then inserted into an aluminium pipe for added crush protection and conductivity. The outer layers consist of aluminium-coated steel wires or aluminium alloy wires, providing high tensile strength, long span capability, and resistance to mechanical stress, while keeping the cable lightweight to minimize tower load. Applications Composite optical cables in Vietnam are used in multiple sectors: Power Utilities: OPGW cables are installed on high-voltage transmission lines to provide grounding and communication simultaneously. Telecommunications: Fiber optic cables support FTTH (Fiber To The Home), CATV, CCTV, and data processing networks. Data Centers and Enterprise Networks: High-performance fiber optic cables are used for data center connectivity and structured cabling solutions. Key Manufacturers and Suppliers in Vietnam Vietnam has a robust network of optical cable manufacturers and suppliers: Viet Fiber: Specializes in high-performance fiber optic and copper cabling solutions with full vertical integration, ensuring quality control and fast delivery for international markets. FPT Telecom International: Offers private internet connections and data transmission channels, supporting high-speed connectivity. CMC Telecom: Provides customized telecommunications solutions with international connectivity up to 10Gbps. SACOM Wires and Cables: Over 30 years of experience in manufacturing wires and cables, including optical fiber cables for various applications. Other notab...
